important to choose a good topic and then describe its causes and effects. Examples of good topics are the negative effects of Internet use, the real causes of a car crash accident, the impact of high gasoline prices, etc.

To choose between descriptive, comparison, or cause & effect is not the most important thing. What people have to put in their minds is that writing is probably one of the most important skills that a student or employee has to improve during his/her life. Writing is also a good way to increase communication, vocabulary, and grammar skills. For these reasons, knowing all types of essays and being able to write them are very important.

What makes writing so important? Nowadays, good writing is one of the most important skills that you have to improve to be accepted in a university or hired in a job. It is difficult to imagine any kind of work without some type of writing. For example, in the universities, students have a lot of papers to write and in applications for employment, employees need to write an essay about their lives and objectives. Writing can be classified in three main types: description, comparison, and cause & effect.

To begin, a descriptive essay is one of the many types of writing which provides a detailed description of a particular person, place or thing. This kind of essay has to be written in a way that readers can create images in their minds about what the essay is talking about. For example, if the essay describes Paris, the reader has to know what Paris is like, all its characteristics, places to go, and things to do. The descriptive type also encourages the student’s ability to create writings that talk about a particular experience.

To continue, the second type of essay is comparison, one of the most common forms of essay writing. In this type, the writer discusses two subjects which can be people, objects, places, or things. There are three correct ways to write a comparison essay: focusing only on similarities, focusing only on differences, or writing about both. In comparison essays, one of the most important things to do is to organize the structure of the text and make sure that the points that have been compared are the same. For example, if the essay is comparing breakfast in China and Japan, the same points made for one country have to be made for the other.

Finally, cause & effect is the last type of essay. In this type, two purposes are important. First, it shows the effects of a thing or event, and second, it explains the causes of a thing or an event. A cause & effect essay deals with an action/result relationship. In other words, it explains why things happen, the cause, and what happens as a result, the effects. To write a cause-effect essay, it is High school sucks. This is my own opinion, and it’s never going to change. Nowadays, most of the people in this world have (or have had) a school experience. And commonly, we can divide them into three categories: by their appearance, grades, and weekend practices.

As far as the appearance of athletic students, the boys tend to have short hair, and the girls tend to wear a ponytail in order to be comfortable when they exercise. They generally have bad grades because they are dedicated to their sport or club activity. Some of them sometimes go to college without studying because they get good recommendations. On weekends, they usually have club activities. However, if they are free, the boys go to the mall to hit on girls.

The studious students tend to put on glasses because of their hard work. And they usually don’t care about their appearance because they would rather use their time to study than to care about their appearance. Of course, they have perfect grades except for PE. In addition, most of them get along with their teachers. What they do on weekends is still unknown. In my imagination, they read comics, watch cartoons, or play mysterious card games with their mysterious friends.

The lazy students are hard to define because they are just lazy. But when you hear someone saying “high school sucks”, that’s them. They don’t wear their uniforms properly and have a unique hair style, which is mostly asymmetric somehow. As always, the grades they get are awful. Despite that fact, the teachers like them for some reason. On weekends, the boys listen to rock music that is unknown to most people and indulge themselves in idle speculation. As for the girls, they usually go to the mall for some athletic boys to hit on them.

High school students are different in their looks, their scores, and their deeds. The athletic students are outgoing and have a typical hair style. The studious students are pretty smart but are mysterious on weekends. I will leave that to be solved. The lazy students are not interested in academics or sports and have unique hairstyles. This is how I classify high school students. Which group were you in?
What would you do without your cell phone or iPhone? I think you would go and buy one because nowadays it is impossible to imagine life without this device. The mobile phone is one of the greatest inventions of the 20th century. Since then, cell phones have affected people’s lives in more ways than one. These effects are health, entertainment and business, and general communication.

It is true that cell phones give us a lot of benefits in some aspects. However, today people-especially teenagers-are becoming addicted to using phones. They cannot stay away from their phones, even for a minute.

Perhaps, because of the benefits of the cell phone, people do not realize the downside of owning a mobile phone. Using them or abusing them too much affects our health. For example, the waves that cell phones generate are very harmful to our physical body as well as our heart and brain. Moreover, listening to music affects our ears, and playing games affects our eyes, too.

Our life is becoming more and more convenient and the mobile phone has become an indispensable and inseparable object. People use it everywhere and all the time to manage their businesses. Nowadays, it is common for a lot of people to use their phones while they are driving on the road. As a consequence, they can cause dangerous accidents for other drivers on the road because cell phones take our attention away, and we become distracted.

Mobile phones have become a crucial part of our lives. One of the most important functions of the phone is that it helps communication become easier and quicker. However, it also causes a lot of problems in communicating. Cell phone use has affected the direct human to human interaction. Talking on cell phones is gradually replacing communicating face to face. For instance, friends who are chatting together for hours by mobile phone have nothing to talk about when they meet at school. It seems that using cell phones too much destroys the pleasure of communicating face to face. Therefore, to avoid “silent communication”, we should be more careful in using our phones.

To conclude, we all know that cell phones have brought a lot of benefits to our lives. Mobile phones are vital in this day and age because of the many convenient functions. However, sometimes mobile phones can cause us many problems. In my opinion, we cannot avoid the use of cell phones, but at least we are able to control its usage.

The Effects of Cellphones on Society by Alexander Oganezov
Be positive and act positively as often as you can.

3. Learn from your past, and then let go.

The same issues tend to keep popping up in life until the lesson is learned. If that’s happening, learn it once and for all and stop the cycle so you can moonwalk forward into the rest of your life.

4. Be grateful

Practice gratitude daily. Take 5 minutes at the end of your day to chill and write down a small list of the things that made you smile, laugh, or that you’re glad are a part of your life.

5. Be positive and believe in yourself.

Being an optimist won’t solve all your problems, but what’s the alternative? There isn’t much sense in being anything else.

A friend of mine sent this to me, and I thought I would share it with you. These are just a few ways to live a more fulfilling and happy life.

1. Be the hero of your own story.

Whatever mistakes you’ve made up until now are off the table. The only thing that matters from this point on is how you move forward starting today.

2. Do simple things every day.

Smile and laugh everyday.